Soviet Rejects Israeli Request For Meeting Between Premiers

The Soviet Union has rejected Israel's request for a meeting between Premier David Ben-Gurion and Premier Khrushchev. An Israeli Foreign Ministry spokesman said at Jerusalem that the rejection had been delivered orally in Moscow April 26, three weeks after Israel had begun pressing for a reply to the request it had made four months earlier.

The reply was delivered by Jacob A. Malik, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, to Arieh Harel, Israel's Ambassador in Moscow, says the New York Times. According to Israel's Foreign Ministry spokesman, the reply was couched in the following blunt words:

"The Soviet Government considers that in view of the statements of Israeli public figures and even Ministers of the Government not conducive to the furthering of peace, the Israeli Premier's visit to the U. S. S. R. would be premature."

The Soviet language surprised Israeli officials. After pondering the reply for a week before they acknowledged that it had been received, they still professed they did not know what statements not conducive to peace Mr. Malik had in mind.

Israel had been pressing the Soviet Union for a meeting between Premier David Ben-Gurion and Premier Khrushchev. Dr. Arieh Harel, Israel's Ambassador, in Moscow, was instructed recently to remind the Soviet Foreign Ministry that a meeting had been requested months ago by Israel at a time and place of Mr. Khrushchev's choosing, says the New York Times. Dr. Harel was also instructed to ask for a reply.

The Israeli Premier has been particularly pleased with the good reception he received on his visits to the United States and Britain. He regards his diplomatic mission thus far as a great success in spreading Israel's views of the persistently troubled situation in the Middle East.

But he wants to keep the diplomatic ball rolling. He has received an official invitation from France for a meeting with President de Gaulle. No date has been set for the meeting, but it is thought likely, it will be in June, after the summit meeting. There is also speculation that Mr. Ben-Gurion will visit Belgium and the Netherlands on the same trip.

"When the Israeli Premier returned from his trip to the United States", Mr. Eshkol continued, "The Soviet Ambassador told him at Lydda airport that so far no reply had been received, but that he was going to Moscow himself and would try to clarify the matter."

Premier Khrushchev said at a press conference in Rambouillet, during his visit to France, that he had "never received" any request for a meeting from Mr. Ben-Gurion.

Levi Eshkol, Israel's Finance Minister said that a request had been made. He was replying to a question in the Knesset (Parliament) while filling in for Premier Ben-Gurion. "About four months ago," Mr. Eshkol said, "the Israeli Premier asked Soviet Ambassador Mikhail F. Bodrov for a meeting with the Soviet Premier, Mr. Nikita Khrushchev, at any time convenient to Mr. Khrushchev. The Ambassador promised to look into the matter and give a reply."

Mr. Ben-Gurion hopes for a declaration from the summit meeting that would serve as a guarantee of the territorial status quo in the Middle East. But he has not suggested that the Western powers raise the issue. The United States has maintained that the Soviet Union has not legitimate business in the Middle East, and therefore no business discussing it at the summit.

But the Israeli Premier did suggest that if the Soviet Union were to begin discussing the Middle East, the Western powers could then strive for the sort of declaration he has in mind.

Michael Comay, a former Israeli ambassador to Canada, and Israel's new chief delegate to the United Nations, said recently that the Soviet supply of arms to the United Arab Republic has tilted the power balance dangerously in the Arab's favor. He declared his country would welcome any reasonable agreement by the big powers at a summit conference to limit the unrestricted flow of weapons to the Middle East, says the New York Times. He made his remarks after presenting his credentials to Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold.

Two leading American rabbis said some months' ago that a meeting between American leaders and Prime Minister Nikita S. Krushchev of Russia would be advantageous to the estimated 2,000,000 Jews in Russia, said the New York Herald Tribune. But one of the rabbis, Dr. Joachim Prinz, president of the American Jewish Congress and the man who called for such a meeting at a World Jewish Congress session in Stockholm, Sweden, said, "the chances are slim" that it will take place.

The other rabbi was Dr. Israel Goldstein, leader of Congregation Bnai Jeshurun, 270 W. 89th Street, New York, and co-chairman of the World Confederation of General Zionists, who spoke at a press conference after returning from an eight-month tour of Africa, Asia, and Australia. He said a meeting between American Jews and Mr. Khrushchev would have two purposes:

"To secure the same rights for Jews in Russia that other minority groups enjoy. To secure the right of Jews to emigrate to Israel as they desire." Dr. Goldstein emphasized, however, that no special privileges should be sought for Russian Jews.

At his press conference, Dr. Prinz said he thought Jewish leaders should seek an official invitation from Mr. Krushchev for a representative study mission of American Jewish leaders to visit Russia. The mission, he said, would seek to:

Determine the facilities available to Jews for activities essential to the survival of Judaism in Russia. Take the Russian Jewish community out of its present isolation from the rest of world Jewry. Recommend ways of enhancing Jewish religious and cultural life in the U.S.S.R. consistent with the Soviet constitution and prevailing practices in the Soviet Union.

"We are not interested in recrimination or denunciations and we have no desire to exacerbate the Cold War," Dr. Prinz declared, "but we are legitimately concerned lest the second largest Jewish community of the world (the United States with an estimated 5,000,000 Jews is the largest) disintegrate."

Dr. Goldstein also urged restraint on the part of American Jews. "Restraint means not to react with bitter condemnatory emotions, but to let the facts speak for themselves in making our case," he said, reports the New York Herald Tribune. Reports that Russian Jews are suffering from official anti-Semitic policies have been appearing regularly in Western publications in recent months. Dr. Prinz met the press after returning from a trip to Europe.

Was Hospital Founder, Established International College Of Surgeons, Led A Zestful Life

Dr. Max Thorek, founder of the International College of Surgeons and a founder and chief surgeon of American Hospital, in Chicago, Ill., died of a heart attack in his home in Chicago. He was 79 years old. An immigrant boy from Hungary who worked his way through college, Dr. Thorek was distinguished not only as a surgeon but as a man possessed of an immense zest for life and for people of all kinds, and as a raconteur of almost Rabelaisan wit.

This energy, wit, and intelligence carried Max Thorek, from the Tatra Mountains of Hungary, through years of hardship to world-wide recognition in the medical profession. When the autobiography of Dr. Thorek was published fifteen years ago, a reviewer in The New York Times described it as a "cheerful, dynamic, lusty, confident, intelligent, talkative, entertaining book, very much, one imagines, the same kind of book as the author is a man."

The International College of Surgeons, established by him at Geneva in 1935, was conceived as a means for maintaining standards while at the same time providing instruction for younger men. Dr. Thorek was a life member, permanent Secretary General and editor of the journal of the college.

Dr. Thorek was the son of a physician, born on March 10, 1880, and when he was still a boy his brother was killed in a sudden pogrom, says the New York Herald Tribune. This led his father and mother to a decision to leave the country, and in 1900 they immigrated to Chicago with the young son, who had already begun his higher studies.

He wanted to continue his education but the family were without funds. He got started in the University of Chicago by playing the snare drum in a college orchestra. He received his medical degree from Rush Medical College of the University of Chicago in 1904.

A year after he got his medical degree he persuaded his boyhood sweetheart in Hungary, the former Fannie Ungar, to come to the U.S. and they were married. She survives him. He always gave her credit for wisely guiding him throughout his life.

He was founder of the American Hospital in Chicago, where he served as its chief surgeon for many years and remained active in its affairs until his death. Dr. Thorek was attending surgeon at Cook County Hospital; Professor of Surgery at the Cook County Graduate School of Medicine and consulting surgeon to the Municipal Tuberculosis Sanitarium. He had been decorated by more than a score of governments for his work in surgery.

In 1954, he was Cushing Lecturer for McGill University, in Montreal. That same year he was present at an international gathering of surgeons at the International Surgeons' Hall of Fame, which he had proposed in Chicago. Jointly associated with the Hall of Fame is the Museum of Surgical History.

He specialized in reconstructive surgery, independent research in the field of glandular transplantation and the development of new methods and techniques, says the New York Times. Thirty years ago he perfected a surgical procedure to reduce the mortality rate in gall-bladder operations.

As he advanced steadily in his profession and as his renown as a surgeon grew, so did the variety, wealth, and fame of his patients. Numbered among them were Lily Langtry, Col. William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill), and Dr. Frederick Cook — at a time when he still claimed to have discovered the North Pole.

He became widely known for his mastoid and goiter operations, and in the 1920s he experimented with gland transplants, though he always said that "rejuvenation" through such surgical methods in the sense of making men or women actually younger would always be an impossibility.

In a major, two-hour address in Rome in 1928 he took issue with Dr. Serge Coronoff, whose goat gland transplants had purportedly given promise of the rejuvenation of humans. Dr. Thorek said that such surgical stunts not only could accomplish no good but could do actual harm.

Dr. Thorek opened his first office in the slums of Chicago's West Side and spent several years in the general practice of medicine before entering surgery. At this period he served in a gynecological clinic, taught at the Loyola University School of Medicine, and on the staff of the West Side Dispensary. Then, in 1908, with Dr. Solomon Greenebaum, he founded the American Hospital.

W. Germans Want Evidence To Convict Nazis Of Crimes At Camps

The West German authorities, who have been seeking witnesses for a mass trial of Auschwitz concentration camp officials, also want evidence to convict Nazis responsible for crimes in other extermination camps, in particular Lemberg-Janovsky, and Przemysl, both in Poland. The Central Prosecuting Office set up by all West German states, has asked the World Jewish Congress in New York for help in tracing witnesses. In 1942 Przemysl housed 20,000 Jews. A year later less than 100 were alive.

Anyone who was an inmate of these camps and can testify to crimes committed in them, is asked to get in touch with Dr. Nehemiah Robinson, World Jewish Congress, 15 East 84th Street, New York 28, N. Y. The World Jewish Congress appeal, also at the request of West German authorities, for Auschwitz witnesses, has brought responses from former inmates now living in the United States and Canada and a number of Latin American countries.

A last-minute appeal to Hitlerite victims to offer testimony against Nazi concentration camp commandants and their staffs was issued by the World Jewish Congress in New York. Dr. Robinson, who is director of the World Jewish Congress Institute of Jewish Affairs, said that the statute of limitations for many crimes committed during the Nazi regime will expire by the end of May. An attempt to extend the deadline was made by the Social Democrats who introduced a bill in the Bundestag, but the Ministers of Justice of the various West German states have expressed opposition to an extension.

"The result is that any action against Nazi criminals and their assistants must be initiated within the next few weeks," Dr. Robinson stated. Witnesses are wanted for crimes committed in concentration camps in Poland (including those near Cracow and in Neu-Sandez county), Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania, and in the Soviet area.

I[illegible]s Do Happen When U. S. Presses Case

Eighteen-year-old Yuri Koral, one day out of Moscow, saw the Yankees beat the Orioles 5 to 0, on television and to him it was as fresh as the caviar he brought back as a gift after a sixteen-year separation from his parents.

Next he tuned in a Western on Channel 4, munched a banana for the first time, turned down an ice cream cone offered by sister Miriam, seven, whom he met when he arrived at Idlewild Airport from Moscow, via Amsterdam, home after living most of his years since the age of two in an orphanage 200 miles north of the Soviet capital.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rubin Koral, of 221 Sherman Avenue, New York, had been separated, says the New York Herald Tribune, through police arrests in the Russian town of Ivanovo, where Yuri was born in 1941, after they had fled Hitler's invasion of Poland. Their infant son was put in the orphanage, and not until a K. L. M.-Royal Dutch air liner taxied in at Idlewild did the Korals again see their first child — now a six-footer towering over his father and speaking nothing but Russian.

His release was a promise that Soviet Prime Minister Nikita S. Khrushchev made last September in the United States and kept after long years of efforts by relatives and a galaxy of interested persons from Vice-President Nixon on down. Yuri Koral is one of about 200 "compassionate cases" on which the United States has been pressing the Soviet Union.

"There he is," shouted Mrs. Koral from behind a glass partition at Idlewild, recognizing her boy from photographs he had mailed during the last year while attending a tractor-repair course at a Soviet technical school. "He looks thin."

Weeping, Mrs. Koral kissed him after he had cleared through customs. His father, an expert sleeve-fitter at the Howard Clothes plant in Brooklyn, stood by, patting his son's head, says the New York Herald Tribune writer

Social Notes — Montreal

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ross (nee Rose Scheffer), of Bronx, N.Y.; and her uncle, Samuel Simkevitz, of Grand Falls, N.B., and the former's cousin, David Lauer, of Philadelphia, Pa., were here for the funeral of Mrs. Ross's mother, Mrs. Dora Simkevitz Scheffer, 705 Querbes Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Soroka, 4400 Draper Avenue, celebrated the bar-mitzvah of their son, Gary Alan, who was called to the Reading of the Law, at Shaare Zion Synagogue. He is the brother of Lewis, Diane, and Howard; grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Soroka, of Miami Beach, Florida; and of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Solomon, 5805 Cote St. Luc Road. Following services, Mr. and Mrs. Soroka were hosts to one hundred and fifty guests at a Kiddush luncheon in the Synagogue hall. Mrs. Soroka was in a light beige silk sheath, made with a boat-shaped neckline; cap sleeves; and a jacket with a wide collar; and long sleeves; with a brown hat; brown-tinted corsage of orchids. Diane wore a pink organdy dress; and had a bouquet of pink Sweetheart roses. Seated at the head table with the above were: Rabbi M. S. Cohen, Cantor S. Gisser, and N. E. Leveson, teacher of the bar-mitzvah boy. Gary Alan gave a speech. Rabbi M. Cohen asked the blessing over the challah. Arrangements of yellow tulips, blue irises, and white snapdragons adorned the table. Here for the occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. Israel Hamburg, of Glace Bay, N.S.; and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Miller, of Cornwall, Ont., uncles and aunts.

Mrs. J. Mendel, 4610 Bouchette Avenue, and Mrs. L. Korman, 5713 Rand Avenue, entertained eighty guests at a luncheon at Ruby Foo's in honour of Miss Tobie Cantor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Cantor, 6234 Legare Avenue, and the fiancee of the former's son, Norman Mendel. Mrs. Mendel was in a black, silk shantung sheath, made with a round neckline; and three-quarter-length sleeves; with a beige hat; and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Korman wore a two-piece, beige, wool suit; with a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Max Cantor, mother of the bride-elect, was in a green silk sheath which had a pleated neckline; three-quarter-length sleeves; with a hat to match; and a corsage of white carnations. Miss Cantor wore a purple, two-piece wool suit, with a buttoned jacket from neck to waist; a Peter Pan collar; and three-quarter-length sleeves; with a corsage of white carnations. The table decoration was a centerpiece of red and white roses, and chrysanthemums.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph George Schwartz, 4984 Circle Road, celebrated the bar-mitzvah of their son, Hilton, who was called to the Reading of the Law, at Shaare Zion Synagogue. He is the brother of Penny, aged eight years; and Douglas and Joan, twins, five; grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Issie Schwartz, 7852 Stuart Avenue; and of Isaac Abramovitch, 2375 Valade Street and the late Mrs. H. Abramovtch. Kiddush was observed. That evening Mr. and Mrs. Schwartz received ninety guests at their home. Pink and white roses, carnations, and gladioli decorated the rooms. The following evening Mr. and Mrs. Schwartz entertained friends of the bar-mitzvah boy at a supper and a screening at their home. Here for the bar-mitzvah were: Mr. and Mrs. George Friedman, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Goldberg, Mr. and Mrs. Alec Greenspan, and Mrs. R. Abrams, all of Toronto, Ont.; and Mrs. Yetta Strimr, of Bronx, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Moe Caplan, 5460 St. Ignatius Avenue, celebrated the bar-mitzvah of their son, Aaron, who was called to the Reading of the Law, at Shaare Zedek Synagogue. He is the brother of Miss Rosalie Caplan; grandson of Mr. and Mrs. David Gurevitch, 4661 Clark Street; and of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Caplan. Following services, Mr. and Mrs. Caplan were hosts at a Kiddush luncheon in the Synagogue hall. Seated at the head table with the family were: Babbi A. Bernard Leffell, and Cantor M. Fogel. Aaron said Kiddush and Grace, Rabbi Leffell asked a blessing over the challah. That evening Mr. and Mrs. M. Caplan held a family reception at their home.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Indig, 1571 Ducharme Avenue, celebrated the bar-mitzvah of their son, Victor, who was called to the Reading of the Law, at Adath Israel Synagogue. He is the brother of Miss Terry Lee Indig; Barbara, aged ten years; Philip, three; and Rhonda, eight months; grandson of Mr. and Mrs. A. Colton, 146 Laurier Avenue West; and of Mr. and Mrs. E. Sufferin, 5120 Maplewood Avenue. Following services, Mr. and Mrs. Indig were hosts to one hundred and fifty guests at a Kiddush luncheon in the Synagogue hall. Mrs. Indig wore a light green coin-dotted, shantung dress, made with a large round collar pointed at the front; three-quarter-length sleeves; and full skirt with an overskirt of matching organza; with a white straw hat, and a corsage of red and white carnations. Miss Terry Lee Indig wore a gold-coloured, shantung sheath; cut with a high neckline; and three-quarter-length sleeves; with a white straw hat; and a corsage of white and red carnations. Barbara wore a blue, organza, party dress; with a bouquet of baby pink roses. Mr. Colton asked a blessing over the challah. A blue and white bar-mitzvah cake combined with red, white, and orange-coloured gladioli trimmed the table.

The Evening Of Life

BY EDWIN SAMUEL

(Conclusion)

I didn't see Victor again till we met at a Tel Aviv Rotary Club lunch. I was the guest speaker, and Victor came and sat next to me. He'd always been a keen Rotarian; and still kept his classification of Government Sub-Accountant (of which there'd never been more than one in the whole Rotary district anyhow).

The Tel Aviv Rotary Club lunches had moved from hotel to hotel as food rationing grew stricter and stricter and all hotel meals became more and more austere. By now the lunch was uneatable. After the chairman's heavy bronze bell had been clanged and the inter-denominational benediction had been recited by a visiting missionary from Dallas (who had brought his own club flag for ceremonial presentation to the Tel Aviv club), I turned to Victor. He was looking pretty bad, I thought, under his usual tan.

"How are you feeling, Victor? You can't be getting ulcers on this diet" — and I pointed at the inevitable fish fillet on my plate.

"No," said Victor. "But I have high blood pressure, I'm afraid. Or so my doctor tells me. All that work on the autobiography. I have had to drop it, you know."

"And what are you doing nowadays?" I asked.

"I followed your advice, my dear fellow," said Victor. "I thought I would be much more useful teaching office management at the Tel Aviv College of Law and Economics — the one you were teaching at, you know."

Even this seemed to me to be absurd. I admit that poor Victor had to have something to keep his mind off his retirement. Even so, his little indispositions were clearly the occupational diseases of the pensioner. But lecturing in Hebrew! That wasn't Victor's cup of tea at all. His Hebrew accent was still atrociously English.

He'd never liked Hebrew as a language, anyhow; it was what "the natives" spoke. For the thirty years of the Mandate, English had been the master tongue of Palestine; and Victor had never admitted the equality of Hebrew. Although Hebrew was now the official language of the new State, Victor in his heart of hearts still didn't accept its supremacy.

"I find lecturing most interesting," Victor continued. "I have to be very strict with my students, of course. They tend to arrive after I have begun my lecture: so I come myself well in advance and make them sign the attendance register before I begin."

"But that won't make you very popular with the students, will it?" I said rather dubiously. "In any case, they have no respect for those lecturers who don't keep them waiting, as I soon found out when I lectured at the College."

Poor Victor! As a lecturer, he must be a terrible old bore, I thought. He always had been and always would be.

"I hope you don't overload your students with assignments," I continued. "I found they're mostly far too tired, after a hard day's work in their offices, to do much more than just listen. They haven't even time for very much reading."

"Oh, that is quite all right," Victor said, beaming as he sipped the undrinkable coffee. "I only set them six essays a term. Then they come and read them to me at home. I am not able to read Hebrew manuscript quite quickly enough, you know, in order to remember at the end what they say at the beginning. Then we spend the rest of the time talking about their future."

How they must hate these intimate sessions, I thought to myself. The only students who would welcome them would be those looking for jobs and who hoped that Victor, with his well-known connections with leading merchants and manufacturers, might be ready to give them "protectzie".

The next time I met Victor was on the Tel Aviv beach, several months later. It was sunny but cool. He was sitting in a deck-chair and was dressed in a white flannel shirt, a gray flannel suit and his old white suede tennis shoes.

"Not swimming?" I asked.

This made Victor uncomfortable and I realized that he was now too ashamed of his bulk to be seen in a swim-suit. He seemed to be deeply immersed in entering figures from a pocket book into a large account book that lay across his pudgy knees. He looked rather haggard, I thought. Pity to spend such a lovely spring morning on the beach doing accounts.

"I won't trouble you, Victor," I said. "I see you're busy."

"No, please do not go, my dear fellow. Come and sit next to me. It would be a relief to have someone to talk to for a while."

"But what about your students?" I asked.

"Oh! I am not lecturing this term. Did you not know? There were too few students to warrant all the work involved in preparing my lectures."

"So what are you doing now?"

"I have opened a bridge club."

"A bridge club?" I asked, with hardly disguised amazement, I fear. This was the most fantastic thing of all. "But why a bridge club?"

"I cannot sleep at night — even with sleeping pills. If I go to bed early, I awake about two or three o'clock in the morning and never go to sleep again. So I decided that I must find another evening occupation. I tried going to some of the public lectures held in different institutions in Tel Aviv but I found the Hebrew too great a strain. The Habimah and Cameri theatres were even worse. I am not musical enough to enjoy concerts. I hate the wireless. One cannot go to see a cinema film every night of the week. So I came to the conclusion that to open a bridge club was the most suitable thing that I could do. I could turn a hobby into an occupation."

"And how is it working out?" I asked.

ANNOUNCING

the BANK OF MONTREAL

Canada Centennial Scholarships

A SEVEN-YEAR PLAN

To commemorate the Centenary of Canada's Confederation and the 150th anniversary of Canada's First Bank ... in 1967

124 SCHOLARSHIPS of $750 to $5,000 in VALUE
... Every Starter Eligible for Final Awards

If you are a high-school student — well up in your studies and confident of graduating next month — here is a great opportunity for you.

If you are a parent, with a son or daughter ready for university this year, here is important news.

We are searching for 50 top high-school students graduating this June . . . young men and women ready for intensive university training in the Arts or Sciences.

From these 50 students, we hope to find eight outstanding young scholars for Canada's Centennial in 1967. They will be young Canadians of exceptional scholastic attainment — well-equipped and anxious to blaze new trails for the benefit of Canada . . . in scientific research, in the social sciences or in the humanities.

One of the winners could be you . . . or your son or daughter.

50 SCHOLARSHIPS OF $750 . . .

In a nation-wide competition opening this week, 50 of the most promising young Canadian men and women, graduating from high-school this June, will be awarded Bank of Montreal Scholarships, valued at $750 each, for entrance to first-year University next autumn.

These young Canadians will be drawn from all of the ten provinces according to population, with a minimum of two scholarship students from each province.

They will be judged by independent University Selection Committees on the basis of academic standing and character. They will enter a Canadian university of their choice as Bank of Montreal Scholarship Students to pursue studies in Arts or Science. Professional courses, such as law, medicine and engineering, are not included. B of M Scholarship Students may hold other monetary scholarships for the first year only.

48 SCHOLARSHIPS OF $1,500 . . .

In the Spring of 1961, the top 16 of these 50 students will each be awarded a B of M Scholarship of $1,500 for second-year university training.

In 1962 and 1963, provided at least good second-class grades have been maintained, these same students will each be awarded a B of M Scholarship of $1,500 per annum . . . leading to graduation in 1964.

24 FELLOWSHIPS OF $3,000 . . .

In the Spring of 1964, the top eight of these 16 students will each be awarded a B of M Scholarship of $3,000 for one year's study anywhere in Canada or abroad.

In 1965 and 1966, provided a satisfactory standard of work has been maintained, these same students will each be awarded a B of M Scholarship of $3,000 per annum for further study leading to their Doctorate.

2 BANK OF MONTREAL CANADA CENTENNIAL AWARDS OF $5,000 . . .

In 1967, to culminate this seven-year plan, the two top students — one in Arts and one in Science — will be chosen, from all 50 participants in the plan, to receive the Bank of Montreal Canada Centennial Awards of $5,000 each for a further year of study anywhere in Canada or abroad.

Thus, to each of these two winners — if they have been participants throughout the plan — the Bank will have provided financial assistance amounting to $19,250.

HOW SCHOLARSHIP STUDENTS ARE CHOSEN . . .

Scholarship students are chosen on merit alone — academic standing and character — by independent Selection Committees of faculty members of Canadian universities. The Bank will have no part whatever in the decisions taken by the Committees.

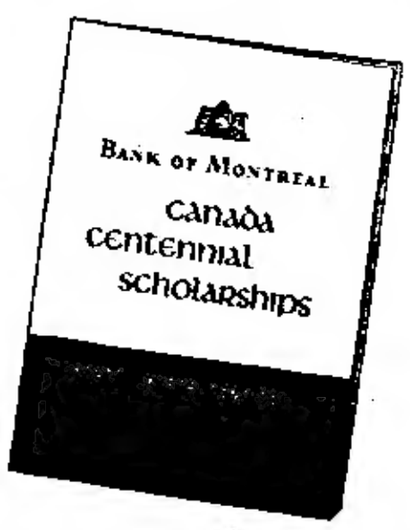
In developing the plan, the Bank of Montreal is in no way seeking personnel for its own staff, but men and women who — through scientific research and pursuits in the public service — will contribute in some notable way to the common good of the nation in the years ahead.

SEE YOUR BANK OF MONTREAL BRANCH AND MAKE YOUR APPLICATION WITHOUT DELAY . . . DO NOT WAIT UNTIL YOU HAVE RECEIVED YOUR EXAMINATION RESULTS. ACT NOW.

HOW STUDENTS IN QUEBEC SHOULD APPLY . . .

Interested Quebec students, graduating from Fourth Year High School this June with College Entrance Junior Certificate, should visit their neighbourhood B of M branch and ask for the "Handbook for Candidates" for the Bank of Montreal Canada Centennial Scholarships. This booklet explains the Scholarship Plan in detail and outlines the simple steps required to register your application for consideration by the Selection Committee of Quebec for one of the 13 scholarships available in 1960 to students of this province.

If there is no branch of the Bank in your district, then — and only then — you should address your request to: The General Manager, Head Office, Bank of Montreal, 119 St. James Street West, MONTREAL, Que.



Yours for the asking . . .

Frank Kelley. Miriam, possessor of a ready-made big brother, jabbered a few Russian phrases at him and clasped his hand.

Yuri slept until 9.30 a.m. in a bed at his family's home. He had his own room at last, and told his mother that he had seen friends in Moscow living four to a bedroom.

"He's like a new-born boy to me," said Mrs. Koral, bustling about the apartment and switching back and forth from Russian to English as she watched turkey cooking in the oven. She had bought a dozen bananas because Yuri liked the first one so much, and for breakfast there had been eggs, herring and coffee.

"Just think," she said. "I kissed him and he told me he had never been kissed before. Yet he could remember when he was one and a half in Ivanovo and he told me it was a little town full of soldiers and they were all singing."

It was not only caviar and the smell of cooking turkeys and the babble of diverse tongues and warmth and love in the Koral apartment. For Yuri also brought back two bottles of vodka, a few kopecks, and a couple of skiing medals he had won. A year ago when he despaired of getting to see his parents again because of protracted red tape, he had thought wildly, because of his prowess on skis, of getting to the United States by trying for a place on the Russian ski team for the Winter Olympics in America.

Through Mrs. Koral, as interpreter, Yuri said that "having parents, a mother, and father, is a new feeling to me." So was the ball game on TV. Yuri's program is lots of rest, home cooking by Mrs. Koral, some Russian or Polish movies, a visit to the Tolstoy Foundation, and then to school, to learn English, says the New York Herald Tribune. He wants to be a mechanical engineer.

NOTICE: CAMP INMATES WHO DID FORCED LABOR FOR KRUPP

The Compensation Treuhand GmbH, Staufenstrasse 29a, Frankfurt a/Main, Germany, has been designated to carry out the agreement concluded between the Conference on Jewish Material Claims Against Germany and the Friedrich Krupp Company, on December 23, 1959.

Former Jewish concentration camp inmates who can establish that they did forced labor during the war at Krupp factories (such as Essen, Berlin/Neukoelln, Fuenfteichen), and have not submitted applications to the Compensation Treuhand GmbH, whether directly or through their representatives, must do so no later than December 31, 1960.

Informal applications should contain at least the following data: first and last names, place and date of birth, exact present address, name of the Krupp factory where forced labor was performed and the length of service. Applicants will then receive a questionnaire from the Compensation Treuhand GmbH, to aid it in checking the information contained in the application.

TORONTO MARRIAGES

BRASS-ENGLISHMAN

The marriage of Miss Katy Englishman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michel Englishman, 2535 Keele Street, to David Brass, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Brass, 18 Studacona Drive, was solemnized on February 14, at six o'clock, at the Judea Brotherhood Temple. Rabbi David Monson officiated, assisted by Cantor David Greengarten. The bride, was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a white lace and silk organza gown, made with short sleeves; a round neckline; and a slim skirt with a cathedral train. Her fingertip veil was held by a crown of pearl-beads; and she carried a bouquet of hyacinths centered with a white orchid. Mrs. William Fisher was the matron of honour. She wore a mauve, silk organza gown, styled with a scooped neckline; short sleeves; and a bell-shaped skirt. Her headband was mauve; and she carried a cascade of yellow roses and mauve carnations. The two junior bridesmaids were Lenore Urovitz and Bonnie Stransman, aged seven years, cousins of the groom. Each wore a turquoise-blue dress with a taffeta underskirt and organza overskirt; with a blue head-band; and carried pink roses. Philip Englishman, brother of the bride, was the best man. The ushers were: David Zierler, cousin of the groom; Stanley Urovitz, Jerry Chapnick, Arnold Unger, and Marvin Goldstein. The two junior ushers were Barry Kaufman, and Robert Brass, cousins of the groom. The canopy was adorned with white chrysanthemums and foliage, and banked with two similar standards. A dinner and reception followed at the Temple. An orchestra played the wedding music. Mrs. Englishman, mother of the bride, wore a turquoise-green, peau de soie gown, which had a beaded bodice, and a sheath skirt; and a hat of the same shade; with a corsage of blue-tinted baby orchids. Mrs. Brass, mother of the groom, wore an aquamarine-blue, peau de soie sheath gown, which had a scooped neckline; and a matching cummerbund; and hat of the same shade; with a corsage of blue-tinted baby orchids. Mr. and Mrs. David Brass spent their wedding trip at the Nevele Country Club, in Ellenville, N.Y. The bride went away in a three-piece, beige suit. They have taken up residence at 10 Wilmington Avenue. Here for the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. David Zierler, of Sarnia, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Adelstein, of St. Catharines, Ont.; and S. Brass, cousin of the groom, of Montreal, Que.

CLASS IN COOKERY

one-half cup sugar
one-half cup butter
one egg
one cup molasses
one cup hot coffee
one-half teaspoon salt
two and one-half cups flour
one and one-half teaspoons baking soda cinnamon
cloves

Cream butter and sugar together. Add beaten egg and molasses. Add all dry ingredients, which have been sifted together twice: Add coffee and spices to taste and mix. Pour batter into a greased eight-by-eight baking pan, and bake at 350 degrees for forty or forty-five minutes. Icing may be used if desired.

Mrs. M. Bacal,
4625 Plamondon Avenue, Montreal.

MOTHER'S COOKIES

one teaspoon vanilla
four cups flour
one-half cup orange juice
one cup sugar
pinch of salt
one-half cup oil

Beat the eggs and sugar together for ten minutes. Add the oil, orange juice, and vanilla. Sift the sifted flour once and add to the egg mixture. Mix well and roll out on a board about until one inch thick. Cut with a small, inverted glass to make the shape. Place on a greased cookie sheet and sprinkle with sugar. Bake until brown in a pre-heated 375-degree oven.

FREEDMAN-ZIMMERMAN

The marriage of Miss Esther Zimmerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Zimmerman, 50 Shields Avenue, to Kenneth Freedman, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Freedman, 1924 Danforth Avenue, was solemnized on January 24, at one o'clock, at Murray House, by Rabbi David Monson, assisted by Rabbi Aaron Zimmerman. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. Her long gown of white silk organza was appliqued with seed-pearl-beads re-embroidered on lace. It had a fitted bodice, scalloped neckline, and long sleeves and a full skirt with a chapel train. Her finger-tip illusion veil was combined with a rhinestone tiara; and she carried a bouquet of mauve orchids centred with stephanotis. Miss Mona Cotlow, aunt of the groom, was maid of honour. She wore a light, turquoise-blue, peau de soie, shirtmaker gown, with embroidery around the neckline; and a bouffant skirt. She had a rhinestone tiara; and carried a muff of mauve orchids. Miss Debbie Zimmerman, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. She wore a brown and beige taffeta gown, cut with a scooped neckline; and a full skirt; and had a rhinestone tiara. She carried a cascade of orange-coloured carnations. Melvin Freedman, brother of the groom, was best man. The canopy was adorned with standards of white and pink carnations. A dinner followed in the Majestic Room of the Murray House. Mrs. Zimmerman, mother of the bride, wore a turquoise-blue, silk organza gown which was made with a sequined, peau de soie bodice, and cummerbund; and full skirt. She had a rhinestone tiara, and a wristlet of mauve orchids. Mrs. Freedman, mother of the groom, wore a light blue, silk organza gown, with draping in front; and a slim skirt; with a rhinestone tiara; and a wristlet of mauve orchids. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Freedman spent their wedding trip at the Nevele Country Club, in Ellenville, N.Y.; and in New York. The bride travelled in a brown suit, with a beige mink collar; and had a mauve orchid corsage. They have taken up residence at 50 Shields Avenue. Here for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. B. Levin, uncle and aunt of the groom, of Detroit, Mich.

MONTREAL MEETINGS

• JEWISH IMMIGRANT AID •

Services of Canada (JIAS) held the annual meeting at Windsor Hall of the Windsor Hotel. A. Eaton, president of the JIAS Eastern Region, presided and gave the presidential address. Dr. J. Kage, national executive director, in a report submitted to the meeting reviewed activities in immigration, social adjustment, naturalization, legal aid, citizenship education. In his report he pointed out that by inviting the newcomer to this country, citizens are duty bound to make his acquaintance and to make him feel welcome and at home, and at the same time must ask him to give to the new country. In offering a new way of life to the immigrant, Dr. Kage stated, "We ask him to surrender his own and that the process of transition and transformation is not an easy one". G. Hollinger, national president, spoke; and also: S. Harvey, chairman of the United Jewish Relief Agencies; W. A. McFaul, Eastern District Superintendent of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration of Canada; Rene Gauthier, director of Services to New Canadians, of the Catholic School Commission; M. Abbey, chairman of the Combined Jewish Appeal. B. M. Bloomfield submitted the treasurer's report. Citizenship School exercises were conducted by J. Shapiro, Q.C., chairman of the education committee, and three hundred students received certificates of attendance. Judge Rene Deguire, president of the Montreal Citizenship Court, presented citizenship certificates to a group of children, newcomers, and Canadian-born. D. Robitaille, Clerk of the Court, led the audience in reciting an "Oath To Canada". A special Award of Honour was presented to Col. Laval Fortier, O.B.E., Q.C., former Deputy Minister of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration, for outstanding services in the field of immigration. The guest speaker was Lavy M. Becker, national vice-president of the Canadian Jewish Congress and chairman of the national bicentenary committee. He spoke about the historical significance of the Jewish community development in Canada as an ethnic group and as part of the larger Canadian community. Prior to the annual meeting a luncheon was given at the Versailles Room of the Windsor Hotel at which Murray I. Gurfein, president of the United HIAS Service, was the guest speaker. A well-known attorney of the Bar of the State of New York, Mr. Gurfein was Chief of Intelligence for General Eisenhower's Psychological Warfare Division during World War II. He is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations in the U.S.A. Mr. Gurfein stressed the fact that immigration is an asset to the country and therefore "the climate of hospitable public opinion must constantly be nurtured". He stressed the significance of the World Refugee Year and the significant role which Canada played in post-war resettlement of immigrants. The process of immigration and resettlement, Mr. Gurfein said, is "often akin to the process of rebirth. To the families we help it means a new life, as if they had been born again". Among the guests there were delegates from various parts of Canada, representatives of communal bodies, and officers from the Department of Citizenship and Immigration, and the United States Consulate. Alderman Philip Fainer was chairman of the nominations committee. The following were elected to the JIAS board of directors, Eastern Region: J. Ain, M. Aspler, M. Berlin, W. Bialik, B. M. Bloomfield, A. Bronfman, A. Charness, H. R. Cohen, O.B.E.; N. Cohen, L. D. Crestohl, Q.C., M.P.; A. Eaton, B. I. Fainer, Philip Fainer, A. Finestone, A. Garmaise, H. Gertler, H. C. ADD VERMOUTH

Whenever your eyes light on those two delectable words in a recipe, think of Bright's Dry Vermouth or Bright's Sweet Vermouth, as the case may be. When you use either of those two great Canadian wines you are using as fine Vermouths as are bottled anywhere.

Prove that statement for yourself. And when you do, consider this. Both of Bright's great Vermouths are carefully blended and carefully aged wines made with 12 rare and expensive herbs imported from four continents.

There can be little doubt in any reasonable mind that a bottle of Bright's Dry Vermouth and a bottle of Bright's Sweet Vermouth are assets in any bar or wine cellar, anywhere.

ABC and HIGH STANDARDS GO TOGETHER

In qualifying for membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations, publishers are doing more than providing advertisers with the facts about the circulation of their publications.

They are also giving active support to the principle that advertising space should be bought and sold only on the basis of verified information — a principle that has contributed in large measure to the interests of all advertisers.

The Canadian Jewish Review is still the only Jewish publication in Canada printed in any language reaching the Jewish community which is not affiliated by a group or an organization and which has the distinction of being a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Fifteen Years After The Second World War

BY DR. NEHEMIAH ROBINSON, OF NEW YORK, DIRECTOR, WORLD JEWISH CONGRESS INSTITUTE OF JEWISH AFFAIRS

To a being from outer space, the picture of our world today would bear very little resemblance to that of fifteen years ago. Then, Europe was, even if figuratively, still shrouded by the smoke of battle. Millions of displaced persons just liberated from oppressive slave and forced labor, dazed by their experience and apprehensive of the future, were roaming around in search of shelter, food, and security. The nations, with the exception of the few neutrals (Switzerland, Sweden, Spain, and Portugal), exhausted materially, physically, and morally by the war and occupation, were in dire need of even the most primitive amenities of life and seeking to re-establish political order in a new world.

The Soviet Union had just overcome, due to generous assistance from her allies and at the cost of tens of millions of people, mortal danger to her own existence. Vast regions in the East were devastated and depopulated, bare of practically everything for a normal economic life. Germany, which had so recently proclaimed the Third Reich to last a thousand years, had capitulated unconditionally to, and was occupied by, the same nations which she set out to conquer or at least to neutralize. She was totally exhausted, hungry and, to a large extent, in ruins.

Now, the nations of Western Europe are economically in better shape than ever, despite the decrease in their political power. The war ruins have disappeared, hunger and disease long ago vanished, industrial and agricultural outputs far surpass those before the war and still are on the increase. The need for outside (mainly U. S.) assistance, at first the mainstay of their economy and the basis for development and reconstruction, is gone. They are even in a position to provide from their own resources considerable assistance to under-developed countries in other continents. Politically, most stable regimes are functioning according to democratic principles.

Germany in her Western part, is completely rebuilt, vastly developed economically and financially, with an independent government of her own, allied to her former enemies. In the East, the Soviet Union economically reconstructed and, in part at least, overcoming the huge manpower losses, strides ahead in many fields of science and armament, although in the field of consumer goods she still lags considerably behind the West. Politically and militarily in command of all Eastern Europe, including Eastern Germany (not to mention the former German regions under Polish and Soviet administration), the USSR is successfully fighting for influence everywhere else, particularly in the Middle East, Asia, and Africa.

When the being from outer space, however, looks more attentively, he will find that the changes that have occurred, although radical, have not created the world of which humanity had dreamed during the war. The dominating status in the world, in many aspects at least, resembles a truce more than a peace. The earth inhabitants call it "cold war." Europe is divided as never before, not only politically but also in its social structure. The dividing line goes through what was known as the "heart of Europe", middle Germany.

Fifteen years ago the annihilation policies of the Nazi Reich had reached their last stages, embracing practically every Jew, where the power or influence of Germany reached. Even in the last hours of their struggles the Nazi chieftains had nothing better to do than to order the death of the few remnants in the concentration camps. It was only through partial disobedience of this order that some survived. The survivors (except in some parts of Rumania or in earlier reconquered regions) were emaciated, starved, and homeless. Thousands upon thousands died in the very first months after liberation.

Gradually, the survivors from the West tracked back to their homelands while those from the East remained to a large extent in Germany and Austria as DPs. Everyone had lost all his earthly goods and livelihood. Somewhat later numbers of surviving Polish Jews in the Soviet Union came back, and most joined the displaced Jews.

Since then many changes have taken place. The miracle of a reborn Israel not only helped to solve the Jewish DP problem but also the exile and migratory needs of the Jews in the Middle East, larger parts of North Africa and Eastern European countries (Poland, Hungary, Rumania, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, and Yugoslavia). Other Jews emigrated to overseas countries. In Western and Central Europe the Jewish communities, some of them strengthened by immigrants from the East, have stabilized their lives. Whatever migratory needs still exist are confined to parts of Eastern Europe (Rumania, Hungary, and Poland) and of North Africa, but even there life on the surface goes on without apparent danger of persecution or similar threats.

The stabilization of Jewish life is, however, more apparent than real. The depleted communities in Europe are small, insignificant minorities, struggling hard to maintain Jewish life on their own. The larger groups in the East have not yet been able to integrate themselves in the new economic and social set-up. The Jews of the Soviet Union, although they played a significant role in their country's fight and still represent a considerable element in sciences and free professions, are deprived of practically all cultural, educational, and organizational rights, of ties with Jews abroad, and of the right of emigration either to Israel or elsewhere.

The virtual annihilation of the traditional Jewries in Eastern Europe deprived world Jewry not only of six million members, but also of the basic source of Jewish religious and cultural values and inspirations the world over. As a result, the danger of assimilation has become acute and the need for a concerted and vigorous action to maintain Jewishness in all of its forms more imperative than ever before.

The victims of Nazi persecution in the West have mostly regained their alienated assets, inasmuch as they were still in existence or not depleted, but have received so far little by way of compensation for damage to their persons or assets that had disappeared, except as they may be paid by Germany either on the basis of domestic law or international agreements.

The situation of former residents of West Germany is more favorable, although the process is not yet completed. Those from the East have lost everything they possessed; whatever was still extant when the war ended, was nationalized or was abandoned or taken over by the state when the survivors emigrated. Some compensation has been provided to emigrants from the East by West Germany, but the program is still far from its end and covers only a small part of the losses suffered.

The recent epidemic of swastika daubings and other anti-Jewish expressions have, if there were a need, demonstrated that Nazi-inspired anti-Semitism is not yet dead. Neither have, on the general level, Fascist (or neo-Fascist) movements disappeared. More than ever is there a need for Jewish unity in the field of political and enlightenment activity. The activities of the World Jewish Congress, which was established in the first period of the Nazi onslaught against the Jews, and worked throughout the whole period to safeguard the interests of the Jews on a global basis, are therefore as important as ever: to insure that Jewish equality and rights not be infringed upon, and, whenever they are, to insure that effective and speedy remedy is taken by domestic and international action.

The Strict Duty Of Canadian Jews

The Congress Bulletin, of the Canadian Jewish Congress, says, under the title, "Let's Not Ravel The Lines":

It has on several occasions been stated that while Israel, pursuant to the Law of the Return and moral obligations, is open for all Jews who desire or need to come and live in it, the State nevertheless represents and speaks only on behalf of its own citizens. This it seems to the Jews in the Western world is the way things should be, and the corollary is equally necessary to state that Israel in no way represents or speaks on behalf of Jews of any other country.

Several governments of Israel through Mr. David Ben-Gurion, have made this viewpoint abundantly clear. Indeed, to accept any other proposition is to advance a weird form of extraterritoriality going much further than any variation yet subsumed under this doctrine. After the several protests of the past and the clear-cut responses of the Prime Minister of Israel, one could have assumed that this particular ghost no longer trod.

Recently, in Montreal, the colourful and distinguished soldier, now a modified Cincinnatus in his role of Minister of Agriculture, General Moshe Dayan, chose to resuscitate the ghost. Mr. Dayan, a good soldier and we dare say a good farmer, was not quite so well cast as a political scientist nor even as a sociologist. He assured the public through a verbatim report of his views that Israel represents the Jews not only in Israel but everywhere. It may well be that "it is hard to be a Jew" but it is even harder for Canadian Jews to yield to Mr. Dayan's extension of the difficulty.

It is not good for Israel nor for the Jews of such countries as Canada, to accept Mr. Dayan's thesis. Up to now Mr. Ben-Gurion has stated the proper position to the Jews of the United Kingdom and the United States. Perhaps it is high time he enunciated it for the benefit of his colleagues at home. Chovevei Zion in Canada will in no way have their faith diminished by insisting to Israel that they are represented in certain spheres only by their own government and in other areas of concern by their own organizations.

To remain indifferent or silent when important Israelis confront them with wholly unacceptable ideas, is to attenuate the status of Canadian Jews in their own eyes, among their fellow-citizens and vis-a-vis their own sovereign government.

The State of Israel is but twelve years old and in this brief span mistakes had to be made while experience was being gathered and the definition of Israel's relation to millions of Jews elsewhere was being formulated. We need not be too discouraged by errors but we must not be dissuaded in this continuing formative period from helping to formulate the lines. General Dayan's statement, we content dogmatically, is a disservice and protests against it are a useful catharsis.

HOSPITAL FOUNDER

At the height of his career, Dr. Thorek turned to photography as an avocation. He had photographs accepted by the Smithsonian Institution, in Washington, D.C., for its permanent collection and he exhibited widely throughout Europe and the U.S.

Dr. Thorek was a contributor to many medical journals and a member of dozens of professional societies, associations, and academies here and abroad, says the New York Times. He was a Fellow of the American Medical Association, the National Gastroenterological Society, the International College of Anesthetist, the Royal Society of Arts, and the Royal Photographic Society of Great Britain. During his long life he became wealthy, and was a collector of rare autographs and other valuable documents.

Survivors include his widow, Fannie; and a son, Dr. Philip Thorek, Assistant Secretary General of the International College of Surgeons, and a staff member of American Hospital.

THE EVENING OF LIFE

"Well, it started all right," replied Victor. "All my old business friends from the Light Industry days were delighted to join — those who play bridge, of course."

"How did you rope them in?"

"I just visited them in their offices. They could hardly refuse, could they? Especially as I kept the monthly subscription purposely low. But that was an error, I am afraid."

"How come?"

"They did not," and a flicker of a smile creased Victor's plump cheeks. "That is the trouble. I had based all my calculations on a low monthly subscription and a high fee for each rubber. There was plenty of room in my flat for six tables. I am a protected tenant, you know; so the rent and rates are still reasonable, even in Tel Aviv. I had a bar installed and I hired a barman. But we never had more than one or two tables in use on any evening of the week."

I could well understand that, even if Victor didn't. All his business friends had been fairweather friends. They must have been delighted to meet him as long as he had power and influence. Now that he was "out", they hadn't any more use for him at all. They'd joined his absurd club out of politeness or pity, so as not to hurt his feelings. But that didn't mean that they'd go to his house to play bridge. Times had changed.

But the last time I saw Victor, he looked radiant again: quite his old self in fact. I was most surprised. It was at one of those Queen's Birthday receptions held by the British Embassy each year in the lushest of the Tel Aviv municipal gardens. A ghastly crush, as usual, and very hot: but one has to go. I can't imagine where all those people came from, though. Some, I know, still held British passports; but many were Israel civil servants and must have been Israelis by then. Perhaps it was the food that attracted them: you didn't see much smoked salmon in Tel Aviv in 1953. But there was Victor, simply wolfing it down.

"What about the ulcers and the high blood pressure?" I asked him.

"Oh, they no longer worry me, my dear fellow. I am a changed man. I sleep magnificently, now that I am back in the service again."

"Back in the service? You mean you're no longer retired? I asked.

"It was very boring. I am not ready to retire, you know, even though I am now seventy."

"And where do you work?"

"In my old place."

"Not as head of the office?"

"Oh, no! The Minister of Commerce and Industry and the Director General are in Jerusalem, you know: I am in the Tel Aviv office."

"Is it easy to run? You were always so critical."

"I am not responsible for running the office. I help my former assistant, Chaim Rabinovitch. He is a very nice man really: he is much more human than I expected."

"Then what do you do?"

"I help him to draft his English correspondence. One must keep up a high standard in such matters, you know. I feel very happy to be back in the office. I have a nice office all to myself; not like most of the staff, who are two and three in a small room. I get there every morning at 7:30: one must set an example, you know. I walk there from my flat; it is only half an hour away. I find that this walk makes all the difference. I even take work home at night, as I always used to. No, I am still good for a few years yet. Then I shall retire properly, in my own time. I think I shall go back to join Ruth and Pamela in London. By then I shall have done my duty to the new State. They will know the standards that are required."
